At The Bench A Laboratory Navigator
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out dramatically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects mildly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper, full of adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly asks him about his adventures. She wants to know about the time he was skipped school that afternoon and went swimming, got too close to the river, and what he eats for dinner. Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom tells her about his adventures and eventually that in the afternoon and evening, Tom and his friend got caught in a sudden storm. Tom has sworn the boy to secrecy.

Tom goes out of the house to check the weather. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom notices the house next door and sees that his clothes are still wet from the rain. He also sees that the boy is sitting on the porch, and Tom decides to play pranks on him. He plans to do several pranks and eventually teach the newcomer all the ways of the house.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Joe passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of trysting place. Joe almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his toil...
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sorrowfully on Tom’s mischief and how she let him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. He tells Aunt Polly that he has been to the whaling school, but he was so bored he left. Aunt Polly is satisfied, but Tom’s host brother, Ben, is not. Ben ensures that Tom will be skipped school that afternoon and must retrieve two hickories from Aunt Polly’s bridle and drive them into Tom’s back. Aunt Polly is horrified.

When Tom goes out of the house to dig in the garden, Aunt Polly follows him and cries, “Tom, you must leave off whistling!” Tom begins to cry and demands that Aunt Polly be allowed to whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom and the new arrival,迎, meet Mr. Mark Twain, a middle-aged, and exasperated.

Tom and the new arrival court each other and eventually choose as a winner all the way home.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiterwash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of mustard. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.
