The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with ink, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper and is told he cannot be skipped school that afternoon and must return to the store to work. While Tom is busy, Aunt Polly reflects on her son's character and how she has failed to discipline him properly. Aunt Polly is satisfied, but not for long. Tom's half-brother, Sid, comes to the store and starts a small argument and eventually chases the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of marble. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his labor.

Tom comes home at supper. He has nothing about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly suggests that Tom be whipped the next day for skipping school that afternoon and rustling from her cellar and showing her that his collar is still worn from his last punishment. Tom has sworn the boy himself to dispose of his collar.

Tom goes out of the house into the night air. He is humiliated and agrieved. Tom and the new arrival exit the house and walk up the street,
