The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew. Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered in ink, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically. “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she let him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime, all black and ill in health about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly warns him not to be skipped school that afternoon and not return home with sore head and shows him that his collar is still worn down, but flat. Tom’s half-brother, Sid, Tom’s half-brother. Tom and the new arrival eat their dessert while Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house to brush his hands. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom meets Baker’s son, Huckleberry Finn, a wanderer and vagrant. Tom and the new arrival communicate and eventually choose the adventure of the day.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jon passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of noose. Jon almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his labor.
